

Dr. Linda Holland is a board-certified chiropractor at the Henry Ford Center for Integrative Medicine. She received her doctoral degree from Life University in Georgia in 1990. She earned the designation of Certified Primary Spine Practitioner from the University of Pittsburgh, School of Health, and Rehabilitation Sciences Department of Physical Therapy in 2021 and is currently pursuing a Master of Business associate degree with a Health care concentration at Davenport University.

Dr. Holland currently serves in the role of Associate Director for the Michigan Back Collaborative (MIBAC), which focuses on better care for low back pain.

She is Certified in the Chiropractic techniques of Webster and Cox.

Dr. Linda has had experience in private practice for 29 years in the metro Detroit area and has worked with HFH for 5 years. She has a special interest in family practice.